Cubs Have the Satisfaction of Whipping the Champions, If Nothing Else.

Copyright, 1912, by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York World). It must be annoying to a champion to have some one come along and swat him, even when the pestilence practically put up in moth balls for the next summer season. The Cubs can go back to Chicago and say, like Young Corbett years ago, when he beat McGovern, "I may not be a champion, but I've had the satisfaction of licking a champion, anyhow."

YOUNG JACK O'BRIEN, who boxes Young Brown to-night, has become almost as clever a boxer as his big brother. He is more aggressive. The original Jack always had a bump of caution. Boxing was a "business" with him.

Philadelphia's Jack O'Brien, the elder, has become quite candid in his old age. "You watch this boy," he said to me recently, "and you'll always like his work in the ring, whether he wins or loses. He's going out to win every time. I know how I used to do those things, but this kid's going to be strictly on the level as long as he's in the game. I learned a long time ago, by hard experience, that it pays to be on the level, and it doesn't pay to be any other way. The knif edge came too late to do me much good in the ring, but the brother gets all the benefit of my old experience."

CHARLIE SIEGER, the old "Hoboken Iron Man," is still fighting. They say he's as hard as ever. Sieger was at his best about ten years ago, when he fought Britt and Tians and a lot of other crack lightweights. They say he could not be fazed by a punch on the chin, long experience in the ring having proved that he was so solidly constructed as a billiard ball from the neck up. He never was clever, but he was strong as a mule, and had the kind of a "kick."

THEY'RE talking about a McFarland-Bat Nelson bout. Bat still intent on his "come back," and willing to fight anybody to show that he can still hold up his hands and push his face against punches without inconvenience, hasn't any objection to Packey. A funny thing about this is that when he held the lightweight title nothing on earth could induce Bat to sign with McFarland. But had a little experience with Packey out in Chicago. At that time Packey was a young boxer semi-windups and star bouts here and there when he had a chance to slip in. He had just reputation enough, though, to get some sort of an engagement boxing in the theatre. Bat Nelson happened to come to town and box in the same show, and Packey went over one day to go on with him for a round or two. An amateur held the watch and became so interested in the bout that he purposely forgot to call time. McFarland fought like a wildcat, and Bat, finding his hands a little more than full, kept up a string of remarks (under his breath) directed to the official, "You big boys," whispered Bat hoarsely, "call time. Are you dumb? Call time!"

The watch holder didn't call, and Bat was forced to go at top speed with McFarland for five or six minutes at a stretch instead of the regulation stage exhibition of two. At the conclusion of the bout he refused to box a second round, and he never did put on the gloves with McFarland again.

EVERY ONE wishes good luck to Frankie Chase now that the operation on his head has been performed. Chase had different times suffered from concussion of the brain. He has had a few fractures and blood clots which would have been fatal to any one but a hardy trained athlete. Aside from these small matters Frank is all right, and if the operation is entirely successful, may be seen on the ring line again next summer.

GETTING RED SOX GROUNDS READY FOR BIG SERIES.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—The business end of baseball—in the form of arrangements for the games in this city of the coming world's championship baseball series—is having long innings at Fenway Park these days while the Red Sox are on the road seeking to clinch their claim to the American League championship and the consequent right to contend for the blue ribbon of baseball.

A force of nearly one hundred clerks and carpenters is at work daily to complete the arrangements for the economy of the games expected to be played here. The carpenters are rearing temporary stands on every inch of available space. Ten thousand seats in addition to the normal capacity of 22,900 seats is expected to result from their labors.
